

2015 Pinot Noir, La Combe Verte, Willamette Valley

Famed Burgundy importer Becky Wasserman was once quoted in Wine Spectator saying, 'You can always judge a great Domaine by the quality of their Bourgogne bottling.' These are words we LIVE by. We put the same care and attention to detail into our two Willamette Valley wines as we do our single vineyard selections. These are the foundation for everything that we do. It is our reputation and our life.

La Combe Verte translates to "The Green Fault" or "The Green Valley", a tribute both to the incredible Willamette Valley in which we are lucky to produce wine and the amazing team at Patricia Green Cellars, whom without their support we would never have been able to start Walter Scott. Essentially, it is Patricia Green Cellar's "fault" that we were able to start this project.

The fruit for this wine is primarily made up of Eola Springs Vineyard, with some barrels of Sojourner Vineyard, Temperance Hill Vineyard, Vojtilla Vineyard and some Freedom Hill Vineyard. The wine is 10% whole cluster, fermented with ambient yeast, and aged in barrel for 10 months with about 30% new oak.

The resulting wine is a serious and beautiful picture of the 2015 vintage, with power and structure giving this wine immediate appeal yet ability to be tucked in the cellar for several years. Layers of red cherries, plums & spicy earth fill the nose. The fruit, tannins and acid all come together to make the wine complete.
